Giant 'America' Battles Heavy Fogs; Expected To Be In Paris This Morning

FRANCE AGOG WITH EXCITEMENT AS FLYERS APPROACH; TREMENDOUS CELEBRATION IS PLANNED

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, June 29.—A flare presumably dropped at sea by the Byrd plane America was sighted about 11 o'clock tonight by the liner Adriatic according to a radio message received at Roosevelt Field.

The message said:

"Signals from airplane heard distinctly on radio finders at 325 degrees. Light was seen falling from same position and bearing. Light southeast winds and fine weather."

NEW YORK, June 29.—"America still going O. K." Ships still reporting hearing."

This message from the America was received shortly after 9 o'clock tonight from the Radio Corporation station in Chatham Massachusetts.

It was interpreted at the Roosevelt Field hangar as meaning that the ships at sea were constantly in touch with the Byrd flyers.

AMERICA GOING O. K.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The America, carrying Commander Richard Byrd and his three associates in a non-stop flight from New York to Paris, tonight, was battling heavy fogs over the open Atlantic.

BAD WEATHER OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

Radio messages from Byrd, relayed from Lewisburg, Nova Scotia, confirmed the reports of bad weather conditions on the Newfoundland coast as carried in earlier dispatches from Universal Service correspondents in Newfoundland.

Commander Byrd's message was received at 6:39 o'clock p. m. New York D. S. T., and read:

"Dense fog covers all Newfoundland, getting above it. Have had bad adverse winds, impossible to navigate. Can hardly see the wing tips. Running into another one now. Byrd."

RADIO MESSAGES SENT OUT

Other messages were received shortly after seven o'clock tonight. One, signed by Noville, read:

"Working our set constantly and hope our messages are all arriving. Getting plenty of cooperation. Thanks for your help. Noville." This message was addressed to the Radio Corporation of America. It was picked up at the big station of the Canadian Marconi Wireless corporation at Lewisburg, N. S. (Continued on Page 5)

All Hawaii Lauds Army Plane Aces

Aviators Make Perfect Landing After Trip Of 25 Hours

(By Universal Service)

HONOLULU, June 29.—Having enjoyed breakfast yesterday morning with his parents in Oakland, Lieutenant Lester Matland accompanied by his navigator Albert Hegenberger had their morning repeat in Honolulu today following their 24th non-stop flight from the Oakland Municipal airport to this city in the remarkable time of 25 hours and 57 minutes. Arrived in 25 Hours.

They took off in their giant Fokker monoplane at 7:08 a. m. Pacific Coast time and landed at Wheeler Field here at 9:05 a. m. Coast time.

Accompanied by a squadron of eleven army planes which had taken the air earlier to extend them an off-shore greeting, the great plane made a perfect landing. The plane was in excellent condition when it arrived. The aviators said they had followed the radio beacon route most of the way.

Here Crowd Clear

The huge crowd which had waited patiently all night for the first signs of dawn and the possibility of an early morning landing, let go a mighty shout as Matland and Hegenberger circled (Continued on Page 8)

Commander Byrd, Plane, and Three Assistants

(By Pacific & Atlantic)

(By Pacific & Atlantic)

(By Pacific & Atlantic)

HE'S ON HIS WAY at last is Commander Richard Byrd, noted arctic explorer (at left). If cooperation will count for anything he is certain to make Paris. He has three picked men with him who are guaranteed to "know their stuff" under any circumstances. They are reading from left to right bottom, Lieutenant George Noville, flight engineer and a pioneer of everything hazardous and scientifically romantic in aviation; Lieutenant Bert Balchen, fourth man to be taken on the America, can sub for Byrd as navigator; Bert Acosta as pilot or Lieutenant George Noville as flight engineer; and Bert Acosta, pilot of the America, who is co-holder of the endurance flight record.

Enough cannot be said of the sterling qualities of the American. The giant tri-motored Fokker has shown itself equal to the task demanded of it in every day. She is completely equipped from stem to stern with every contrivance to make the Atlantic flight as safe as possible.

Byrd's Life Reads Like Horatio Alger Fiction; Shows Stuff Of Hero

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, June 29.—Like a Horatio Alger hero, the life of Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd is a story that appeals to everyone. It is a life of courage, hope, vision, that eventually materialized despite almost overwhelming hardships and dangers.

This crowning feat, accomplished when he circled the top of the world in May, 1926, was the realization of a dream he had nourished for twenty years. Twice it was interrupted. Once, when Peary discovered the pole and shattered his boyish desire, again when it appeared that funds could not be secured to finance the flight that ended in success.

Byrd President. In both cases he displayed the Byrd persistence to finally win out.

The exploration career of the distinguished Virginian began when he was a lad of twelve. He wanted to go to the Philippine Islands to visit a friend, Judge Adam C. Carson, a former Virginian.

When his mother declined to listen to his plea, Dick said that he would go, anyway. He threatened to run away, so his mother finally consented.

On Lone Cruise. So it was that the chunky, handsome lad, in knee-pants, started on a lone cruise that took him around the world before he again saw his parents. That was in the spring of 1901.

When he returned he had seen insurrections among the natives of the Philippines, had escaped the dreaded native cholera, and had traveled a zig-zagged course through Europe and China on almost every sort of steamer.

Fifteen reporters met him at New York when he landed after his trip. They were eager to interview America's youngest globe trotter. It was a dramatic climax to the young wanderer, a world waiting to hear of his experiences.

Of Noted Forebears. Byrd's dauntless courage comes to him through a long line of famous forebears. It runs back, on the American side, to the advent of the first William Byrd, Virginia explorer, who came to America in 1654. The first, second and third William Byrds have been glorified in American history, and, through them, have grown others of the famous name to carry on traditional characteristics of his family.

The first William Byrd brought with him a land grant from the King of England. He settled on the falls of the James river, now Richmond, Virginia. In a short time he had acquired land that covered 400 miles, and his home, Westover, is still a Virginia showplace.

PROHIBITION WIDOW IS WITNESS IN MURDER TRIAL

Mrs. Rita Mamola widow of the youthful prohibition sleuth attached to the Alameda county district attorney's office and "loaned" to Contra Costa county shortly before he was shot down and killed in Richmond on April 12, was the first witness called by the state at the opening of the actual trial of Joe Agrella, Joe Calmbra, Homer Lusk and Stanley Czekiel this morning.

The jury, selecting of which was expected to consume several days was suddenly terminated yesterday afternoon when the twelve jurors were sworn and adjournment taken to this morning for the taking of testimony.

The most bitter battle of the trial was expected this afternoon when Deputy District Attorney James F. Hoey attempted to introduce the statements of the four defendants, taken immediately after their arrest and in which they are said to have admitted the part which they played in the attack on Mamola. Reading of these statements to the jury was bitterly opposed by attorneys for the defendants, Joe Sullivan T. D. Johnston and Myron Harris who made his first appearance in the trial yesterday morning.

SALE EXPECTED TO BE CLOSED IN SHORT TIME

Consummation of a deal whereby the Conn Drug company of Richmond acquires the Lang Drug store, at 938 Macdonald avenue, is expected to take place today.

Acquisition of the Lang interests marks another step in the development of the Conn concern, which at present conducts a drug store at 2234 Macdonald avenue.

The Lang drug store has been conducted by A. C. Lang, who has been in the drug business in Richmond for the past twenty years. He has been located at the present location for the past year.

The Conn Drug company is headed by Elmer G. Conn, who has conducted an establishment on Macdonald avenue at Twenty-third street for the past three and a half years. Conn is a graduate of the University of California's pharmacy college in San Francisco, and was formerly associated with the C. Niedecker drug store of 116 Washington avenue, Point Richmond.

He entered business for himself four years ago, taking a location at 2234 Macdonald avenue. His business, developing to such a point where expansion was necessary, he acquired the large storeroom at 2234 Macdonald avenue, which he has occupied since November of last year.

Lang has not yet announced his plans for the future.

'DOT' MACKAYE CONVICTED IN 'FIST SLAYING'

(By Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 29.—Dorothy Mackaye, stage actress, was found guilty of attempting to hide facts in the "knuckle slaying" of her husband, Ray Raymond, musical comedy star, by a jury in Superior Court late today.

The jurors found that Raymond's death, which followed a fist fight with Paul Kelly, screen player, over the love of Miss Mackaye, constituted manslaughter. This verdict fixes the actress, sentenced to from one to three years imprisonment.

The specific charge on which she was convicted in compounding a felony.

VIVID ACCOUNT TELLS HOP OF ATLANTIC ACES

By GENE FOWLER

NEW YORK, June 29.—America's four winged horsemen—Byrd, Acosta, Noville and Balchen, went roaring down the airways and into the misty dawn at Roosevelt Field today. For sixty-three stark, terrifying seconds, their perilously laden monoplane, the American, fought to free itself from the stubborn, damp brown earth. It won narrowly but gloriously.

In Lap Of Fate

A premature start down the greased runway ramp threw the four-winged horsemen squarely into the lap of fate. That was at twenty-three minutes and fifteen seconds after five o'clock. Ross Gardner, veteran of Byrd's Polar dash, had been crouching for a full minute over a three-quarter inch hemp pole at the America's blue-tipped rudder.

That slender strand was all that held the trembling steed of the intrepid four-winged horsemen (Continued on Page 5)

William Byrd was an explorer. He was commissioned by Governor Chulpepper in 1680 to explore the wilderness which is now North Carolina, and to make friends with the Indians in order to repel the French.

The family has now dwindled until the three brothers, Tom, Dick and Harry, are the heads. Harry, the governor of Virginia, is married and has five children. Dick, now Commander Byrd, has three children, two of them boys, Tom, the lawyer of the family, has only one.

None of them has passed the forty year mark in life.

But this is an autobiography of the Exploring Byrd.

When Dick returned from his world tour, he went back to his native town of Winchester, in the beautiful valley of Virginia—and to every boy's nemesis—school.

Attended Annapolis

When he completed his early schooling at Winchester, he was appointed to Annapolis. And it was there he first conceived the idea of being the first white man to reach the North Pole.

Two years later, however, he was shocked to learn that Commander Peary had discovered the Pole. Then Dick said to himself: "Airplanes are coming into use. Some day I will be the first to fly across the top of the world."

Aviation had gained rapid strides when he graduated from the naval academy, and he went quietly about his work of perfecting instruments that would increase chances of success.

Injured Foot

But another disappointment was in store. In 1916, before the days of war, Byrd struck a nail in his foot that resulted in permanent disability. He was placed on the retired list, but not for long. His progress with navigational instruments had been so outstanding, he was recalled to duty. He was assigned to the duty of developing navigational instruments and equipment for the proposed trans-Atlantic flight of the NC-3 and NC-4.

Invented Sextant

He had already invented the bubble sextant, a navigation instrument for aeroplanes which works on the same principle as a carpenter's level. This enables the flyer to find an artificial horizon, and to calculate his position in flight, even though the sea horizon is not visible to the flyer.

His next invention was the drift indicator, now in use on all army and navy planes, as well as commercial ships. Another was the sun compass. This is a sun clock-work. The sun, which circles about the rim of the horizon once every twenty-four hours, is used with the instrument to obtain direction.

It was with the bubble sextant and sun compass that Byrd proved beyond doubt that he had actually reached the North Pole.

Congress awarded Byrd the rank of Lieutenant Commander in 1922. He has lost this rank through his theoretical disability.

Byrd asked permission to bring the German dirigible ZR-3 home from Germany, but was refused because of being married. The same excuse was given him when he asked to accompany Amundsen. In 1924 this act was lessened by Byrd's sense of humor, when it was learned that the man selected to go with Amundsen married as soon as he was advised of the assignment.

Flew Over Arctic

He was so persistent in his determination to explore the North country, he was given permission by the navy department to accompany MacMillan in 1925. While with the explorer Commander Byrd and Floyd Bennett flew more than 4,000 miles over the Arctic country.

Then they determined to go on an expedition of their own. When they returned, Byrd set to work to obtain a suitable plane for the journey. He selected a Fokker ship, a triple-motored "Job."

His next problem was to finance the expedition, and after he had secured a promise of the shipping board for a vessel at nominal cost, he found use for additional funds.

Edsel Ford, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Vincent Astor, E. Trubee Davison, now assistant secretary of war, Richard Hoyt and others agreed to finance the flight, and Byrd left New York on the Chantler in the middle of April, 1926.

On May 9, after a fifteen hour flight he returned from his successful flight over the top of the world.

Given Medal

Commander Byrd and Floyd Bennett, his pilot, were decorated with the congressional medal of honor, and advanced in rank by an act of congress. Byrd was promoted to commander and received with full pay.

He immediately began to plan for his flight to Paris this year for Rodman Wanamaker, the financial backer of the flight, was ready to promise assistance as soon as Byrd returned from the Polar expedition.

NEW NASH CARS DISPLAYED BY HUDDLESTON

Three entirely new series of cars, including 21 models, are now being displayed by H. P. Huddleston, local agent for the Nash car, at the new salesrooms at Eleventh street and B'sell avenue.

Huddleston took over the Nash agency in Richmond on June 10, following the death of Frank A. Scholes. An entirely new building was erected by P. M. Sanford, building contractor at more than $20,000. The structure has a frontage of 100 feet on Bissell avenue and 75 feet on Eleventh street.

Huddleston came to Richmond from Napa where he handled the agency for the Dodge Brothers car for seven years. Prior to going to Napa county he was connected with the Harrison company of San Francisco for nine years. His experience in the automobile "game" covers a wide field, placing him in position to handle the popular Nash line in Richmond with a maximum of efficiency.

The new series Nash cars will be known as the Advanced Six, the Special Six and the Standard Six and despite a wide array of costly improvements these cars are also featuring new lower prices, the reductions ranging as high as $195.

A new radiator design, lower and more sweeping body lines and a brilliant array of new color combinations make these new models without question the most beautiful ever produced by Nash, and the cars fully justify reports which have been current for the past weeks that Nash would introduce an array of cars which would command nationwide praise.

Important mechanical refinements and improvements are also announced at this time, keeping pace with the progress which has been made in increasing the beauty of the cars' appearance. Outstanding among these are the introduction of new springs of a secret alloy steel which is said to increase riding comfort in amazing degree.

The new body lines are lower and more sweeping than ever before and the wheels are smaller and having an additional appearance of lowness to the cars although interior roominess has not been sacrificed in the smallest degree.

Matching the beauty line is the new array of color combinations which Nash has adopted for these cars. Many striking new harmonies are used, giving these cars a brilliance of appearance which is unequalled in their fields.

The radiator design of the Standard Six causes this series, now to possess a beauty of appearance which not long ago was confined entirely to cars costing two or three times as much.

The size of the motor in the Standard Six has been increased giving this car a degree of performance ability which, according to Nash officials, is entirely new to this price field.

In addition to increasing the size of the motor, the size of the crankshaft has also been made larger to achieve greater motor smoothness. The crankshaft will of course continue to be of the 7-bearing type which has made Nash smoothness famous.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Heir To $4,000,000 Killed In Plane Crash

ONE PRINCETON YOUTH was killed and another injured after their plane crashed at Pottsville, Pa. The dead youth was J. T. Walker, 21, heir to a $4,000,000 fortune, and the other his cousin, George T. Lambert, son of a St. Louis millionaire. They had been graduated at Princeton and were on their way to their homes in St. Louis. Above, crowd's about shattered plane.

atop the man-made mound from which it was to leap for the great circle course. The propellers of the three racing motors were thundering their challenge to the sun, which seemed afraid to mount above the slate gray battlements of the Eastern clouds. It was a moment of dramatic pitch.

3,000 See Top

Perhaps 3,000 onlookers, many of them heavy-eyed and pallid from an all-night vigil, sensed that there would be a struggle before that fire-breathing plane could lift its 14,761 pounds to the first lowly rung of the ladder to the dawn. A long knife, razor keen, was in mechanic Gardner's right hand.

Bert Acosta, a determined frown over his falcon nose, was on the port side, at the controls and was shooting gasoline to the three snarling Wright motors. Bert Balchen, the Norseman, was at Bert's right elbow. You could see Commander Byrd's right forearm with a wrist watch reflecting the beams of the floodlights that flanked the plane as he stirred in back of the small windows of the navigator's cabin. Noville, who had gone smilingly up through a trapdoor on the underside of the arched-bellied America, could not be seen now.

Acosta barely had removed his wooden horse, from which he had administered a last polish to the navigator's windows when the first intense moment of the trans-Atlantic bird burst with a fury against the wall of spectators on either side of the take off lane. Gardner was ready with his knife. It was planned to let the motors warm for another five minutes.

Motors Race

The motors were raced to their maximum, shooting splashes of muddy earth back on the frocks of the women who stood at the tail of the ship. Struts vibrated. The huge, black-tied wheels blocked by triangular wooden stops, bogged down under the pull of the rope leashes. Suddenly the rope leashes, snapped. With Herculean jerks the ground crew pulled the wheel blocks forward and to the side, but not without trouble.

Acosta Displays Nerve

To Acosta, first of the four winged horsemen to handle the controls in the flight, came the duty of displaying what a man of superb nerve and almost matchless air-sense can do. T. Harold Kincaid, mechanical wizard of the Wright company, was agast. As the great, wide-winged machine shot like a dragon fly down the ramp, Kincaid sat in his high-powered motor car ready to race down the runway in back of the America.

"Thank God for that! I knew Acosta couldn't fail. He's too game and too good. They're all game!"

He looked about as though someone might issue a denial as to the fighting qualities of the four winged horsemen. Indeed, it seemed that he almost wished someone might say something, for it would have done him a world of good just then to lash out with a goodly fist and thus release some of his mood.

"Perfect work" Kincaid added. This man, beloved by all who dare the skies, supervised the engines in the Lindbergh and Chamberlin and Levine flights.

A second message was picked up by the liner Doric at sea. It was addressed to Grover Whalen, and said:

"No time to muss with code now. This radio is hectic job. Regards. Noville."

"Crew in good condition. Head winds are bothering us. Cape Race is the last station we will raise on this coast. Regards to all the hangar crew. Byrd."

Heading For Open Sea

This message, received at Roosevelt Field shortly before six o'clock this evening, New York D. S. T., indicated that Byrd was nearing eastern coast of Newfoundland, and would be over the Atlantic ocean in a very short time. Cape Race is the extreme southern point of Newfoundland, and it is off the coast, between Cape Race and Cape Francis, a distance of approximately 80 miles, that the fog belt was reported.

From now on, Byrd's trip promises to be extremely hazardous. From New York to the Massachusetts coast, and then over the Canadian Maritime provinces, the America was favored with excellent weather.

MECHANICS SCORE VICTORY OVER ALL STANDARDS

ARLETT OUTFIT IN LATE RALLY TO RECORD WIN

HOW THEY STAND

	W. L. Pct.
Barrel House	5 2 .714
Refinery	5 3 .625
Mechanics	4 5 .444
All Standards	2 6 .250

Pop Arlett's Mechanics showed that they are not yet out of the running for the 1927 Standard Oil championship when they triumphed the All Standards, 6 to 4, yesterday afternoon at the first street ball park. As a result of their victory, the Mechanics drew up to within a game and a half of the Refiners who are holding down second place.

The Mechanics won yesterday's contest when they staged rallies in the closing innings and overcame an early lead established by the lowly All Standards.

Throws Game Away

It was a tough game for Walter Murphy to lose, but the husky All Standard right-hander has only himself to blame for the defeat. Murphy held the Mechanics to six hits but threw his own game away in the sixth inning when he made a poor peg to first base.

Gene Kersten, who opposed him on the mound, seems to be about at the end of his string as a pitcher, but still had enough yesterday to hold the All Standards safe. Gene allowed seven hits but struck out eight All Standard hitters in the seven innings.

Take Early Lead

The All Standards took the lead in the third inning when they tallied twice. After Thorson had fouled out to Kersten, Carson singled and went to second when Arlett booted Freine's roller. Armentrout walked to fill the bases. Johnny Huseika whose heavy hitting resulted in his being shifted to clean-up position on the All Standard team, came through in the pinch with a long double, scoring Carson and Freine.

Another All Standard rally was produced in the fifth when Armentrout drew a pass, stole second and scored on Lamarra's error of Huseika's hit.

Mechanics In Rally

Going into the fifth inning three runs in the rear, the Mechanics staged a rally that gave them four tallies and the lead. Kersten, first man up in the seventh inning, was hit by a pitched ball, going to second on Lamarra's single. Murray walked to fill the bases. "Anchovy" Bartoli fanned, but Billy Lane ducked gracefully into one of Murphy's slow balls, forcing Kersten home with run number one. Babe Borton then proceeded to hit a sloppy double to left center, scoring Lamarra, Murray and Lane.

Score Deadlock

The All Standards tied the count in the sixth frame when Dode Carson, wafe on a fielder's choice, advanced to second on Freine's slow roller, stole third and scored on Armentrout's out.

The Mechanics came right back in the sixth to score the two.

WILL HE CUT HIMSELF A PIECE OF CAKE?

Friday, June 24, was Jack Dempsey's 32d birthday! See all the candles he blew out on his birthday cake! The only ones left lit are Sharkey and Tunney. Has he the steam to blow them out?

tallies that gave them the victory.

Cleek batting for Velosa, drew a walk to open the inning. Kersten laid down a bunt and Cleek scored all the way from first when Murphy threw widely to first on his play. Kersten palling up at third, he scored a minute later on Lamarra's long sacrifice fly to center.

tension prevailed in London sporting circles on the eve of the Walker-Milligan battle for the world's middleweight title. The battle takes place at Olympia London's betting odds are generally in favor of the challenger at the rate of believe that Walker will retain his title. The prediction is even made that Walker will win by a knockout.

COLUMBIA WINS POUGHKEEPSIE BOAT CLASSIC

REGATTA COURSE, Poughkeepsie, (N. Y.), June 29.—The gallant

varity crew of Columbia shared honors today with the smashing

Navy plebe eight and a record-breaking Washington junior varity, in the annual intercollegiate rowing classic on the Hudson.

A "dark horse" in the pre-race calculations, the New York oarmen swept to a thrilling victory over Washington in the four-mile classic, leading the westerners home by the length of a boat margin in a final heart-breaking dash through the final mile. California was third, more than three lengths behind the flying leader, with Navy, the favorite, a poor fourth.

The victory for the crew of

"Dick" Glendon, almost the same beatdown that pulled to a decisive conquest last year in the Freshman race here, broke a winning streak of the Washington and Navy boats that had lasted through the past six years. Columbia last gained the championship in 1914.

Since 1921 the Northwest oarmen and Middles have each won three victories.

Rivaling the Columbia performance in decisiveness was the record-breaking three-mile dash of the Washington Huskies in the junior varsity event. Washington returned the distance in 15:12 4-5 to crash the mark they set last year at 15:40 1-5, when the event was rowed at that distance for the first time. Columbia was second, almost four lengths back in this event, with California third.

The navy Plebes, rowing the two miles as though it were a mere jaunt, pulled home smoothly with a load of power in reserve to vanquish a gallant Syracuse

boatload of yearlings by a length and a quarter. Navy lay back most of the way, letting the Orange caramen set the pace, only to "steal the play" in the final mile for a comparatively easy victory in 9:45.

Columbia was third, a length behind Syracuse, with Cornell fourth, Pennsylvania fifth, California sixth and Wisconsin seventh and last.

HEART TROUBLE Marvelously Relieved
While visiting her daughter here in Oakland, Mrs. W. H. Morton of Stockton was in such great pain due to her heart trouble that she could neither walk nor rest with the physicians whom she consulted. She was so weak that she could not move more than ten days to live. She truly seemed to be at the point of death when she took her first package of the Fong Wan Herbs. It was cooked for her at home and that night she had the first rest after many weeks of terrible suffering. After four weeks of the Fong Wan Herbs treatment, she was able to return to her home in Stockton. From that city she has sent the following testimonial to the Fong Wan Herbs Co.:
OWES HER LIFE TO FONG WAN HERBS
Stockton, Cal., March 21, 1927.
To the Fong Wan Herb Co.: I have been suffering with a serious trouble of the heart for some time. I became so ill that my doctors, who were many, gave me but a week or ten days to live. I decided to try the Fong Wan Herb Co., and to the amazement of all who attended me, I was able to walk into their office after taking the Herbs one week. I have now taken them four weeks and I feel only a slight weakness. I cannot speak too highly of the Fong Wan Herbs, as I owe my life to them. I am very grateful to Fong Wan for his kindness.

All Hawaii Fetes Flyers As Pacific Flight Ends

The field and came to perfect stop. "I'm hungry" were the first words uttered by Lieutenant Hegenberger as he stepped from the little cabin of the plane.

"Let's have a cigarette," was the first request of Lieutenant Maitland, as he stuck his blonde head from the pilot's compartment with a great grin.

"They put in coffee and sandwiches, just before we started, but we couldn't find them," Hegenberger explained.

"Congratulations my boy," General Edwards Lewis, commander of the department of Hawaii, said to Maitland as he clamefired from the plane.

"That's fine, thanks," responded Maitland. "But give me a cigarette."

Army, navy, and civilian officials extended the aviators their welcome and congratulations for adding a new chapter to a man-made bird conquest of the Pacific.

Officials Pay Homage

Governor Wallace Farrington, Major Charles Arnold, Admiral John McDonald, General Edward Lewis, of the department of Hawaii and fellow officers were first to pay their homage to the intrepid fliers who had conquered the vast expanse of the Pacific ocean from the mainland to these tiny islands.

It was a genuine home-coming for Lieutenant Maitland, for seven years ago, he was stationed here and had then predicted that an airplane would conquer the trackless wastes of the Pacific. In fact he had expressed a wish that he would be the first to do it.

Had "Fine Trip"

"We had a fine trip," the fliers chorused as officials hung their over their heads and escorted them to the platform for their official welcome.

Both aviators were enthusiastically welcomed by their buddies to whom they confirmed that their "type B" compass was the only one that functioned on the trip.

Looked Cheerful

They looked cheerful and happy as they walked to the platform amid cheers. Neither indicated in appearance the great strain they must have been under during the trip.

"You have made this a great day for yourselves and your country," said Governor Wallace Farrington.

Cold On Last Lap

"It was very cold last night and Kauai was covered with heavy clouds. You can bet that light looked good to us in the early dawn and the sunrise of Kauai was the most beautiful sight I have ever seen," said Maitland, the spokesman in conclusion.

"I want to add," he said, "that we are grateful for the privilege of making this trip. There are plenty of pilots in the army who could have done it as well or better. The only amusing incident, was our frequent thirst for that coffee and soup which was in our cabin but which we could not find."

Hawaii Gives Best

The fliers gave their interview in a suite at the Royal Hawaiian hotel where they were assigned beautiful quarters facing the valleys and mountains.

While they talked breakfast was brought into them and after that they sent a number of telegrams. Then they asked for a chance to sleep.

They revealed that they had to write messages to each other on account of the noise of the motors on the trip.

They said they were both greatly elated when they caught sight of the Limer Sonoma showing that they were directly on their course.
